Description
To a large extent the construction of gender and the rules and practices of diverse racial and ethnic groups and the differences shaped by socioeconomic class demonstrate the cultural cultural relativity of family life. In this course we will critique our own internalization of these “rules” and “practices”, and pursue gender and multicultural perspectives that encourage and affirm respect for the diversity in various family systems. We will explore the way sexism, racism, and classism function oppressively, limiting possibilities for well being in family systems and shaping the context for care. Using the lenses of gender, race, and class we will examine racial groups in North America with particular attention to their patterns in the following areas:

- Life cycle issues
- Marriage norms
- Gender rules and roles
- Family functions and processes
- Religion and ritual
- Values
- Mental illness/dysfunction
- Attitudes for seeking help

We will consider the implications of such differences for appropriate interventions and continuing care in pastoral practice and family therapy. We will give particular attention to discerning the oppressive effects of racism, sexism, and classism for our own lives and develop personal and professional strategies for resisting their destructive effects.

Student Learning Outcomes (SLO)
Through participation in this course students will be able to:
1. Articulate an understanding of the dynamic and complex processes of racial identity, (2, 3, 4, 5)
2. Demonstrate knowledge of the social construction of gender and gender roles noting as well characteristics that transcend culture, (2, 4, 5)
3. Demonstrate knowledge to critically identify their own gender, racial, and class assumptions, (2, 3)
4. Demonstrate knowledge of the nature and effects of racial, gender, and class oppression, (2)
5. Develop strategies to effective resist racism, sexism, and classism in their personal lives and professional practices, (1, 5)
6. Demonstrate knowledge of at least 4 different racial groups in North America in relation to the categories noted in the description above, (2)
7. Integrate knowledge to pastoral counseling practice and marriage and family therapy, (1, 5)

Methodology
This course will use seminar discussion of readings assigned, video presentations, and experiential exercises.

Technology
A copy of the syllabus will be posted on the blackboard. Reading assignments from the Supplemental text reading assignments will be posted on the Blackboard. Email will be used for submitting written assignments no later than 11:00 on the day the assignment is due. The email address is ewalker@lpts.edu.

Inclusive Language
Learning is fundamentally concerned with communication, self-expression, and personal and social transformation. Learning respects individuals, their feelings, their value and worth, and their particular potential for contribution to common knowledge and community virtue. Learning is fundamentally and intentionally inclusive.

Since all learning is inherently ethical and political, and theological discourse has been traditionally patriarchal and gender exclusive, the Seminary has established a policy, in the interest of constructing an inclusive and egalitarian community, that the language (symbol and metaphors) used in class discussions and written work shall be gender inclusive and respectful of all persons and groups as valued creations of God.

Racism is also a pervasive exclusive and oppressive factor in our society that is detrimental to any learning environment. We will use language, symbols, and metaphors that honor our commitment to a racial inclusive community.

Academic Honesty
Fully document any information used in your papers that is not original. When you summarize information be aware that you must summarize in your own words and not retain the original authors style. You may receive assistance with proper documentation of sources at the Library and/or the Academic Support Center.

Course Requirements
