

Therapeutic Care of Children

Louisville Seminary (PC 3163)
 Fall 2017: 1:30-2:50 Tuesday/Thursday
 Room 121, Schlegel
 Instructors: Bradley Wigger and Jennifer Schiller

Description

This course provides theological, theoretical, and practical foundations for a comprehensive exploration of the world of children. Assessment of children is seen through the lens of pastoral care and counseling utilizing a systemic approach. Developmental, pastoral, and clinical assessments are incorporated to determine possible individual, family, and community interventions. This multi-dimensional framework provides awareness of societal, familial, cultural, and theological implications for providing therapeutic and pastoral care for children in a variety of settings including church, school, home, agency, and residential placements. Course materials and activities will focus on psychological and spiritual development of children. Relevant theories of Marriage and Family Therapy for use in providing therapy with children such as solution focused, narrative, structural, expressive, and play therapy will be considered in an experiential format.

Specific topics of concern include: attachment, child spirituality, family structure and stressors, grief and loss, anger, depression and anxiety, child abuse and neglect, the impact of trauma, and considerations of diversity.

This course is an MFT elective and it fulfills the pastoral care requirement for the Master of Divinity program.

Requirements

To meet these goals the course relies heavily upon class discussions of readings, reflective exercises, students' writing, presentations, and practice with various forms of play and relational models of therapy. Accordingly, class participation and preparation are crucial. Guidance for weekly assignments and the final project will be given in class.

Grading

Course Engagement 50% (Weekly assignments plus participation)
Theology of Care Statement 10%
Final project 40%

Late assignments will not ordinarily be accepted—in rare cases they may be, with prior permission, but the grade may be lowered at the teacher's discretion.

Course Engagement

Journal: Every week students will have a journal assignment related to the reading. In addition to logging the reading, these will ordinarily be short 1-3 pages or the equivalent in some cases, answering questions or completing tasks (e.g. draw a picture, invent a simple game) provided by the teacher. These assignments should demonstrate a thorough understanding of the reading and express thoughtful engagement with the task/question. Journals will be collected periodically through the semester.

Class participation:

- Weekly attendance and class preparation are assumed. Unexcused absences and other manners of nonparticipation (e.g. checking email, texts, or phone) will result in a lowering of the course grade at the professor's discretion. See technology policy below.
- Each class will begin with a picture book devotion led by students (five minutes maximum).

Theology of Care Statement

Students will write a 2-page paper (approximately 500-600 words) describing their understanding of care theologically. That is, who and/or where is God in relation to practices and acts of care. More guidance will be given in class.

Final Project

Students will design their own final projects, with various options available. The projects must be of obvious relevance to the course. The work involved should be roughly the equivalent of the time and energy involved in a 20-page research paper, but practice-oriented projects are highly valued as well. The time could be spent teaching, writing, interviewing, organizing, creating, or providing resources for your project. Typically a 20-page paper is calculated at approximately 20 to 30 hours of work. Some possibilities are:

Constructing a workshop integrating play therapy

(for example, a parenting workshop; training module for other therapists or clergy, play therapy for adults or teens, how to talk/listen to children)

Writing a research paper on a relevant subject

(for example, psychological theories of play, a theology of play, a theology of childhood, multiple intelligences and play, play and religious education, play and creativity, play and healing)

Conducting qualitative research

(for example, interview several children, teachers, parents, or therapists, artists, novelists, or musicians about play or creative processes)

Designing and or actually implementing a church educational event

(for example, a Sunday school series on caring for children, an inter-generational retreat focused on playing in God's grace or a spirituality of play)

Designing a group therapy plan

(for example, a six week grief group for children 5 to 8 years old, a family group series, or family-related series)

Students are allowed to partner with a classmate for a joint project in some cases (with each still fulfilling the required hours). Students must get approval for their projects, submitting a brief provisional plan by October 12 with a progress report due November 16. Final project is due Tuesday, December 12.

Electronic Technology Policy

This is a low-to-no technology course during class time. There will rarely, if ever, be a need for using laptops, tablets, phones, or any other technology that takes attention away from the classroom. A paper notebook will be sufficient. If there is an overwhelming need for use of a laptop, please request permission from the professor. You may use such technology for homework.

School Policies (excerpted from The Faculty Handbook)

Use of Inclusive Language

In accordance with seminary policy, students are to use inclusive language in class discussions and in written and oral communication by using language representative of the whole human community in respect to gender, sexual orientation, ethnicity, age, and physical and intellectual capacities. Direct quotations from theological texts and translations of the Bible do not have to be altered to conform to this policy. In your own writing, however, when referring to God, you are encouraged to use a variety of images and metaphors, reflecting the richness of the Bible's images for God.

Academic Honesty

All work turned in to the instructors is expected to be the work of the student whose name appears on the assignment. Any borrowing of the ideas or the words of others must be acknowledged by quotation marks (where appropriate) and by citation of author and source. Use of another's language or ideas from online resources is included in this policy, and must be attributed to author and source of the work being cited. Failure to do so constitutes plagiarism, and may result in failure of the course. Two occurrences of plagiarism may result in dismissal from the Seminary. Students unfamiliar with issues related to academic honesty can find help from the staff in the Academic Support Center. For more information, see the Policy for Academic Honesty in the Student Handbook.

Special Accommodations

Students requiring accommodations for a documented physical or learning disability should be in contact with the Director of the Academic Support Center during the first two weeks of a semester (or before the semester begins) and should speak with the instructor as soon as possible to arrange appropriate adjustments. Students with environmental or other sensitivities that may affect their learning are also encouraged to speak with the instructor.

Citation Policy

Citations in your papers should follow Seminary standards, which are based on these guides:

*MFT students are required to follow APA.

Attendance Policy

According to the Seminary catalog, students are expected to attend class meetings regularly. In case of illness or emergency, students are asked to notify the instructor of their planned absence from class, either prior to the session or within 24 hours of the class session. Missing 1/4 or more of the course may result in a low or failing grade in the course.

First Journal Assignments:

Page 1: create a reading log: identify the reading, date of completion. Be honest.

In your notebook, write 25 one-line statements answering this question:

What do we learn about children (or care of children) from the book, Kira, Kira? Over and over simply write:

We learn that (e.g. children appreciate beauty).

We learn that (e.g. stuffed animals matter)

We learn that...fill in the blank

You may want to do this as you read—chapter by chapter—or do them all at the end. Some answers may be very general or quite specific. Some may be silly, some very serious. We will share some of these in class to generate discussion.
